MUSE AND MATRIMONY

By T. SHERWOOD BOYD

Copyright, 1905, by T. C. McClure

"Do you know," remarked Gerald Goodsell, "I think I shall take to writing poetry."

Nettie Ainsworth gave a little laugh as she settled herself more comfortably in the big chair. "Who ever heard of a poet with a waist line larger than his chest measurement?" she teased.

"I say," he cried, "I'm not to blame because I'm—er—plump—am I?"

"You're not to blame, Gerry," she laughed, "but you cannot have indigestion and the fires of genius within you at the same time."

"But I have a splendid digestion," he persisted. "Four meals a day never feaze me."

"Poets," counseled Nettie, "never have regular meals. When they lead regular lives they cease to become geniuses."

"But that's all tommyrot," he declared loftily. "I can be a genius and have the comforts of life, can't I?"

"If you are a very great genius, Gerry, you may be able to live those handi-

"THAT'S WHAT I'VE BEEN TRYING TO SAY TO YOU FOR TWO YEARS."

caps down, but few men write good checks and good verse at the same time."

"Well," he said stubbornly, "I don't think my checks would be protested, and I write verse. Bob Thompson said they were first rate. I read him some the other night."

"So that is what he meant," mused Miss Ainsworth.

"What's what who meant?" demanded Gerald.

"Why, Bob said he had been to see you the other evening and had had one of the best laughs he has enjoyed in a long time," she explained.

"He told me they were good."

"No," explained Nettie. "I think you will find that he said they were great."

"It's the same thing."

"'Great' is a word capable of a wider latitude of definition," she reminded him. "Read me some of the verses."

"You'll laugh," he contended.

"No," she promised; "I'll be very good and quiet."

"Here's one I thought up last night," he began bashfully:

"My lady's eyes are blue and kind,
Her charms are charms of face and mind,
Her equal would be hard to find;
'Tis she I love most dearly.
My lady's face is pure and sweet,
My lady's hair is dainty, neat,
And trim her tiny little feet,
And she's an angel—nearly."

"I think that last line needs a little polishing," said Miss Ainsworth gravely. "The lady of the lines might object to being called a near angel."

"I say," cried Gerald in shocked tones, "you don't suppose I meant that, do you? That's poetic license—to make the rhyme, you know."

"Suppose you make it, 'And she's an angel, clearly?'" suggested Nettie. "That would be more polite."

Gerry's face brightened. "It's awfully good of you to suggest that," he said. "It's a whole lot better."

"Is there a second verse?" asked Nettie.

"Not yet," admitted Gerry, coloring. "You see, the different verses should be alike in meter. Now, when I start a second verse it sounds different. I had a second verse to this. It goes:

"I never loved another girl
With half the tender passion
That keeps my head all in a whirl
In this unusual fashion.
If she would only give her love
To one who loves her dearly,
I'd think the stars in heaven above
Like her eyes shone more clearly."

He paused expectantly. Miss Ainsworth admitted that the verses were scarcely of the same metrical measurement.

"I think," observed Gerry, "that I'll have the verse done in a booklet where there is only one verse to every other page and the rest of the paper is covered with pictures. Then, you see, it would not matter so much."

"You should be an inventor, Gerry," counseled Miss Ainsworth. "I think you are more ingenious than poetical."

"But I want to be a poet," he protested. "I've got such a lot of things that I dare not say to the girl herself. It's the only way to let them come out."

Nettie smiled. "Now it all comes out," she declared. "Who is the lady, Gerry?"

"I cannot tell you," said Goodsell, his face crimsoning. "You see, if I could get up the nerve to tell you her name I wouldn't have to write this stuff."

"Why don't you write her a proposal in rhyme?"

"Didn't I try?" he groaned. "I put in three weeks before St. Valentine's trying to find a rhyme for her name."

"Now," announced Miss Ainsworth triumphantly, "I know where one of my valentines came from."

"Rotten, wasn't it?" he asked despairingly.

"Well," she admitted, "you might have found a better rhyme for my name than 'let he.'"

"I worked four hours to get that," he asserted. "You try it and see how hard it is."

She went to the table and scribbled on the fly leaf of a book. Then she brought it to him.

Your name might be Eva or Grace
Or Agnes or Annie or Letty,
But it's not, and I'll make a brave race
For the love of the fair lady Nettie.

"See how easy it is?" she demanded as he looked up.

"I can do it myself now," he announced as he in turn moved toward the table. Presently he returned to the fireplace. "Read this, please," he said as he handed her the sheet. On the other side of the paper she read:

Her hair may be blond, black or red,
Her name may be Hettie or Letty,
But the girl I am anxious to wed
Is a brunette, and her name is Nettie.

"That's what I've been trying to say to you for most two years," he went on earnestly. "It may be bad verse, but I think I'll make a better husband than I will a poet. Say 'Yes,' dear," he urged.

And Nettie said, "Yes, dear," so softly that he had to kneel beside her, with his arms about her, to catch the whispered words.

Locomotive Fielded Ball.

In the baseball annals of Texas, Baltimore county, is an incident which, whether an actual occurrence or not, has been repeated so often that it is invested with the force of fact.

On a hot Fourth of July back in the eighties, when the catcher held his position behind the bat without a mask and the pitcher knew of no curve or toe plate, there was a game of ball between the Texas Sluggers and the Timonium Little Potatoes, but Hard to Peel. The Sluggers had got in some good stick work early in the game, and the visitors were just feeling the big Texas pitcher. It was the fifth inning, and the Little Potatoes had two men on the bases, one on second and the other on first, when one of their home run hitters, who had been asleep until this moment, struck the ball. It cleared the entire field and would have fallen on the railroad track, but just at that moment a train came along, and the ball disappeared in the smokestack of the engine. The train was going at a lively speed up grade, and the force of the puffs ejected the ball. The momentum of the train carried it until it fell in the third baseman's hands, and a double play was the result. After much kicking from the Little Potatoes as to whether the play was fair the side was retired, as the double play made three hands out.—Baltimore Sun.

The Polite Burglars.

It is said that even the most gentlemanly of our burglars have much to learn from Japan in the way of politeness, if one may judge by a description of the manners of robbers in that country. Three men broke into a dyer's house while he was away, and one of them gently asked the wife how much money there was in the place. She answered that there was just a little in the house. The robber laughed and said:

"You are a good old woman, and we believe you. If you were poor we would not rob you at all. Now, we only want some money and this," placing his hand on a fine silk dress.

The old woman replied: "All my husband's money I can give you, but I beg you will not take that, for it does not belong to my husband and was confided to us only for dyeing. What is ours I can give, but I cannot give what belongs to another."

"That is quite right," approved the robber, and he immediately withdrew with his confederates.

The Planet Mars.

"I am certain Mars is inhabited," said Camille Flammarion, "and probably by people much more advanced than we are. The year in Mars is twice as long as ours—that is to say, it really consists of 730 days. The public at large does not really know the precision of some of our astronomical observations. Thus we know the length of the day in Mars by diurnal rotation to the one-thousandth part of a second, and from observations, which have now extended over 100 years, we find the length of the day on the planet is 24 hours 47 minutes 22 seconds. The climate of the Martians is very mild; there are no gales, while the atmosphere is very light, with scarcely any clouds. The inhabitants enjoy fine weather, the climate being dry and clear. We know the globe of Mars perfectly; in fact, far better than the earth."

The Word "Invention."

The old, general meaning of the word "invention" seems strange to modern eyes and ears. "Invention" signifies simply "finding," though the meaning of discovery has been specialized away from it in modern speech. Thus Hooker wrote of "that judicial method which seemeth best for the invention of truth." When Burton wrote of "the invention of a geometrical problem" he meant its solution. In the seventeenth century the circulation of the blood was described as "the best and most useful invention of this latter age," and in the eighteenth century Dr. Willis was referred to as "the first inventor of the nervous system."

The Pictures of Paul Jones.

"Paul Jones," says a writer, "was portrayed in every costume that a pirate could be expected to masquerade in, and his whiskers were of the longest, blackest and curliest. He is portrayed in all degrees, from the sardonic gentleman cutthroat to the blood and wounds Bill Bowline type of tar, but always with as much sofa pillow stuffing as possible. One portrait presents him in a neat militia uniform, something like that of the time of the Mexican war and with the pattern of whiskers afterward known to fame as 'Burnsides.' There seems to be one point of accuracy in all these pictures if they are of the three-quarters or full length. Jones is always represented with a girdle full of pistols, a habit of dress to which he was accustomed."

Training a Cow.

T. P.'s London Weekly relates how Major Miles Malony of Ballyduff was amazed one morning to see from his bedroom window a little lad driving a cow back and forward again and again over a ditch and through a fence on his land. Hurriedly completing his toilet, he rushed out to question the little trespasser. "What are ye after with that cow? Is it to kill the beast ye want?" "Kill her! Shure, it's to keep her alive I want." "Keep her alive?" "Shure, it's taiching her to get her own living I am. There isn't a ditch or fince in the barony that'll hold her in afther I've done wid her." Then the major understood. The cow, in fact, was being taught to trespass in search of her own living.

Stonewall Jackson's Looks.

Stonewall Jackson's form was tall, gaunt and angular. His feet and hands were large, and his walk was singularly ungraceful. He always spoke quickly, in short sentences devoid of ornament, but to the point. A habit of "batting" his eyes added no little to the peculiarity of his appearance. His eyes were gray and ordinarily dull and expressionless, but when excited by drill, which always seemed to rouse him, especially when charges were fired, the whole man would change, as if he were transported by the roar of the guns to the exciting scenes of an actual field of battle.—Thomas M. Semmes in Century.

The World and a Living.

It is an old cry that the world owes every man a living. This is a favorite argument with the lazy and shiftless. But the world owes none such a living. If a man will not work he shall not eat is a mandate as old as the race itself. But there is another fundamental sense in which the maxim that the world owes every man a living is profoundly true. It owes every man a fair chance to earn a decent living. And that is all that any self respecting man asks or wants.—Boston Post.

Shattering Her Hopes.

Mr. Close—About how much does an automobile outfit for a woman cost? Mrs. Close (excitedly)—Oh, George, you are not going to buy an automobile, are you? Mr. Close—I should say not! I'm merely trying to figure out how far beyond his income that man Brassey is living.—Brooklyn Life.

Double Loss.

"I hear you lost your heart up at Miss Sweetley's house the other evening," said the gossip.

"Yes; and worse than that," replied the practical lover, "I lost my umbrella. I suspect one of those brothers of hers."

Wide Awake.

Fuddle—You know Stocks, don't you? Doctor—Yes, indeed. He is now a patient of mine. Fuddle—Pretty wide-awake man, isn't he? Doctor—I should say so. I'm treating him for insomnia.

In all meanness there is a defect of intellect as well as of heart. And even the cleverness of avarice is but the cunning of imbecility.—Bulwer.

FROM HEAD TO FOOT
you feel the good that's done by Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cleanses, regulates and invigorates Stomach, Liver and Bowels and so purifies the blood. And through the blood, it cleanses, repairs, and invigorates the whole system.
In recovering from "grippe," or in convalescence from pneumonia, fevers, or other exhausting diseases, nothing can equal it as an appetizing, restorative tonic to build up needed flesh and strength. It rouses every organ into natural action, promotes all the bodily functions, and restores health and vigor.
For every disease that comes from foul or Weak Stomach, a torpid Liver or impure Blood, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, and the most stubborn Skin, Scalp, or Scrofulous affections, the "Discovery" is a sovereign remedy. Don't be hypnotized, wheedled, or over persuaded into accepting a substitute only that some selfish medicine seller may make a greater profit on the inferior article. The "Discovery" has a great record of nearly forty years with thousands of cures behind it.

Dear Sir—Several years ago my blood became impoverished and I became run down in health. I had no appetite, could not sleep, and was practically unfitted for work. Suffered from innumerable boils and was in bad shape. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery relieved me of my wretched condition. The medicine built up my system and restored me to a normal condition of health. I can speak most highly also, of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as it has been used in my family for years in cases of female trouble.

The Kind of Individuals This Century Needs

THE kind of individuals this century needs combines the highest type of all the preceding centuries, and that type which our present age demands. As we progress we seek to eliminate the unnecessary—that which will be a burden, and to take on everything that will fit us for the life of today. The individual who adjusts himself to the present conditions and is quick to see what the century demands is the man who wins out and becomes successful. So it is with the nations. They must keep abreast of the times or they lose prestige.

This is a day for young men. Opportunity comes earlier now than formerly. We should not deplore the fact that the employment of such young men is hard on the man of age. These conditions should make it possible for every man to be independent before he gets old—to become an employer. It should be an incentive to make the best of this life and it should stimulate ambition and self-reliance.

We hear much about overcrowded professions and callings these days, but young men should remember that there is always room for one who excels, that the fittest will survive. Make up your mind to excel. "If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon or make a better mousetrap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

Don't be satisfied with the mediocre and you will find that the world needs you. One of the great demands of this century, and one on which the future greatly depends, is the proper kind of homes, where the men of tomorrow will receive their first great impressions and get the atmosphere necessary to their well-being. The individual who has had the right kind of a home builds his fortunes on a strong foundation and is endowed with a good start in life. The man who has never known the influence of a good home, or has been raised in a bad one, has much to overcome and contend with. He is handicapped.

The proper kind of homes in which to prepare our men and women would solve many problems. At the head of such a home there should be educated, intelligent, kindly and broad-minded parents, between whom there should be perfect congeniality and consideration for each other. The example of harmonious domesticity in the home would do much to eliminate the divorce evil. As it is the individual often gets a distorted idea of marriage in the unhappy home where he is born, and carries it up through life into a home of his own, which in the end is broken up in the divorce courts.

The century needs men who have the advantage of good homes, and men who will make good homes. Good homes are in reality the workshop of a nation, for a nation is nothing more or less than what its people are. Good citizens come to a nation through good homes.

THE ragtime philosopher
Pondered one day
On this world of ours,
This queer world so gay.
And a smile that was broad
Illumined his face,
And out of his brow
Every wrinkle did chase.
And a look that was merry
And a smile that was wise,
Came into his countenance
As he opened his eyes;
Then slowly but blandly
He told me his mind:
Said, money's a great thing
If you have the right kind.
It does things most strange.
Public approval it buys,
And much that is fierce,
It's bound to disguise.
There is much in a name,
Though Shakespeare says, nay,
But our old chum, the bard,
Did not live in this day.
Yes, there's much in a name,
And though boozing's the game,
The rich man's called sport,
While the poor man they claim,
Is a drunk, common drunk,
Yet they both look the same.

A WAVE of pity surged over the land when the tidings of the accident in San Diego harbor were received. Every American keenly feels the loss of those patriots and deplores the conditions that brought about their untimely death. Rigid inquiry should be made. There is not enough attention paid to the inspection of boilers and machinery in this country. Boilers have to explode before their real defects seem to dawn upon those who are in charge of them. Many lives might be saved if the law was more strict in the matter of compelling timely investigation.

WE extend congratulations to Cloverdale for carrying the $30,000 bond proposition this week.

Excursions to the East at Half Fare

During the coming summer months rare opportunity will be given to visit eastern cities at a minimum expense.

Tickets will be sold by the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad at practically half the regular rates, or one fare for the round trip from California points to Denver, Omaha, Kansas City, Memphis, St. Louis, Chicago and many other points. For a slight extra cost trip may be made via Portland with a free stop-over at the Lewis and Clarke Fair.

The world-famed scenery of the Denver & Rio Grande needs no introduction to most travelers. The Canon of the Grande, the Eagle River Canon, the Canon of the Arkansas, the Black Canon of the Gunnison, the Royal Gorge, and Pike's Peak, form but a part of that glorious panorama, all of which is viewed by daylight from the new observation cars with open tops—as one passenger said, "It is just like touring in an auto."

Through sleeping cars to all principal points east.

Mr. W. J. Shotwell, General Agt., D. & R. G. R. R. Co., 625 Market street, San Francisco, will, on application, quote lowest fares, arrange sleeping car accomodations and all details of your trip, and send you free some beautifully illustrated travel books. Write today.

Joe Dowdall, visited Santa Rosa Saturday and Sunday.

Wm. Wyatt of this place visited friends in Sonoma Sunday.

Hugh Chance of San Francisco visited his folks in this place Sunday.

Professor Mendleson of the El Verano Villa visited Sonoma Wednesday.

William Chase was in town Wednesday on business with Happy Hooligan.

Mrs. L. D. Batchelor and Miss Sparrow returned from San Francisco Monday evening.

The Pinkeys of San Francisco visited the Bellevue Sunday. They were fifty strong and had a jolly good time.

E. P. Lounibos was in town on business Sunday. Mr. Lounibos is now building a large wine cellar at Kenwood.

J. Kelleher, the well-known Gaelic dancer and family of San Francisco are spending the week at French Cottage.

Ben Heavey, who spent the summer here, left suddenly Tuesday afternoon. A number of our saloon men are wondering where the young gentleman has gone.

P. Forni's new hotel is overcrowded. Mr. Forni is turning people away daily. He expects to build a large number of rooms in the near future.

Mr. Levy and family of San Francisco are spending the week at the El Verano Villa. Mr. Levy is now in the fire department but was formerly an old time professional ball player.

Johnnie Greene's lost duster has been found, after being gone for the last six months. Mr Greene is a barber in this place, and through his and Constable Mouyer's good detective work, the garment was returned by the accused without appeal to the law.

Last Friday our three barbers had a picnic. A number were looking for a shave. It happened that the three got together and forgot their shops for the day. All report having a jolly good time.

Joe Herbert, the popular and rising young waiter of El Verano Villa, purchased a fine tent and household goods last Tuesday. This looks bad Joe. Rumor has it that Joe is going to start an open-air restaurant in this place, but Hooligan has an idea that Joe is going to take unto himself a bride, as he has been very attentive for the last several weeks to a stunning young summer fairy.

El Verano, as usual, had its weekly runaway this week. This time Ralph Ent was the victim. It seems that while Mr. Ent was at Boyes' Hot Springs, his thoroughbred colt became frightened at an automobile and ran away. A young lady and Mr. Ent were both thrown out. Mr. Ent fractured his leg. The horse was badly skinned up and the cart badly damaged. The horse was caught in front of Mc's Resort by Johnnie McNeil, the proprietor, who rushed from his saloon at the risk of his life and caught the frightened steed. At this writing Mr. Ent is improving.

Her physician tried to telephone for Mr. Harris, but being unable to do so, communicated with Dr. O'Brien of Petaluma, who came over here and told Mr. Harris the first news of his wife's illness. Mr. Harris went to San Francisco immediately.

Monday evening at about 9:30 o'clock a fire was discovered by Milton Mc Gimsey in the rear of Conrad Futterer's home on Napa street. A big time will be had at Agua Caliente Springs tonight and tomorrow. Mr. and Mrs. Theodor Richards, the proprietors, announce a grand mask ball for tonight, which promises to be a jolly affair. Spectator

I laid down my pen some time ago, but owing to certain conditions, which seem to demand remark, I again invade the sanctum of ye editor and proceed to voice my sentiments through these columns.

It is of the Board of Trade of which I wish to speak and the peculiar kind of enthusiasm with which the people of this valley seemed to be endowed. Their enthusiasm is not of the right sort. It is too erratic and comes by fits and starts. It should be inspired by more sincerity of purpose. The Sonoma Valley Board of Trade was organized and launched with a flourish of trumpets. Like a sky-rocket it blazed for a short time across our horizon, and everyone cried, "ah." Now, it attracts about as much attention as the stick of a sky-rocket. Nothing is being accomplished, interest lags and the attendance at meetings is decidedly slim. Every individual should realize that he is the unit of which the Board of Trade is composed, and should see to it that he does his duty. If all the units comprising the organization would do as much, the Board of Trade would be a success. As it is each member looks about him to see what some other fellow is doing, and in watching for him to make a move, neglects to take the initiative.

The Board of Trade we need, but we need the right kind, and we need members who will place their time and money at the disposal of the cause.

Let the Cat Out of the Bag.

A certain English innkeeper's family conducted a weekly raffle. In this raffle the prizes were turkeys, ducks, young pigs, baskets of eggs and such like rural commodities. A quantity of steel disks, numbered from 1 to 25, were put into a black bag, and the little daughter of the innkeeper put her hand in the bag and drew a disk for each speculator in turn. The person whose number was the highest got the prize.

Well, it had been noticed that the innkeeper's wife got the prize pretty frequently, but nothing was thought of this by the simple, honest rural folk.

One evening, though, the little girl, with her hand in the bag, paused. It was her mother's turn, and she did not draw forth her mother's disks in her usual quick and careless way. She rummaged about. The other rafflers looked at one another oddly. The innkeeper said:

"Come, come, child, hurry up."

"But, father," said the little girl, "I can't find the hot one."

Oldest Dwellings In Europe.

One of the very earliest human settlements in Europe is Roche Corbon, on the banks of the Loire, seven miles above Tours. Here limestone cliffs stretch for miles and are pigeonholed with caves, which are on different levels and open on to terraces. When the rest of the country was nothing but forest land Roche Corbon was a thriving settlement inhabited by wild skin clad predecessors of the present cave dwellers. These terraces and caves were formed by the action of mighty rivers, and during the glacial period, when the climate of that portion of France was very severe, man drove out the bears and hyenas and took refuge in these natural shelters, which faced south, and so became human settlements of a primitive sort. Near at hand were the rivers and great forests full of fish and game.

The Oriole and the Bee.

Birds, their heads being small, are usually regarded as stupid, but an amateur naturalist has pointed out a proof that the oriole at least is very intelligent. Take the oriole's habitat in the summer, he said, and all around it you will find the decapitated bodies of bees. The oriole is fond of honey, and he has discovered somehow that the bee carries honey in a sac. Accordingly he rushes down on the insect, snips off its head, removes its viscera and then swallows the honey that is now laid bare. This shows intelligence on the oriole's part, but I have not yet described the thing which shows the bird's reasoning power most strongly. It is the stingless male white headed bees that the oriole slays. The stinging bee he leaves alone wisely.

The Poor Editor.

The stork disappears, and we look into the cradle and behold a male child. After running the gantlet of measles, mumps and chickenpox he enters school. At the age of ten he is the terror of the neighborhood. At twelve he is an apprentice in a printing office. At eighteen he has acquired two cases of long primer type and an Army press and is the editor of a country newspaper. At twenty he is married. At thirty he is baldheaded, stoop shouldered and is the father of a large family. At thirty-five he is a corpse in a cheap pine coffin, and as 500 delinquent subscribers file past his bier for the last look they are heard to say, "He was a good fellow, but he couldn't save his money."—Lockwood (Mo.) Times.

The Chignon, 1771.

I had my heddus roll on. Aunt Storer said it ought to be made less. Aunt Deming said it ought not to be made at all. It makes my head itch and ache and burn like anything, mamma. This famous roll is not made wholly of a red cow tail, but is a mixture of that and horsehair (very coarse) and a little human hair of yellow hue, that, I suppose, was taken out of the back part of an old wig. Nothing renders a young person more amiable than virtue and modesty without the help of false hair, red cow tail and D—— (the barber).—"Diary of Anna Green Winslow," Alice Mono Earle, 1771.

Keep Your Brain Busy.

Dr. Duke, the leading English brain specialist, says the trouble with most brains is that they are not kept busy enough. The brain ought never rest except during sleep, and most persons take too much of that. A good, healthy circulation of blood would be maintained in the brain if professional men would relax themselves from their intellectual pursuits, not in golf, but in chess problems and scientific investigations.

Imitation.

Nell—It's an opal ring Mr. Cheapside gave me. Belle (examining it)—Er—do you like it? Nell—Yes, but there's that old superstition, you know. I'm afraid it will bring me bad luck. Belle—Don't worry. The worst this could bring you would be an imitation of bad luck.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Beauties of Golf.

Beginner—But I can't play golf well enough to get any enjoyment out of it. Enthusiast—Yes, but that is where the game is so successful. The poorer you play it the more exercise you get.—Life.

The Retort Cutting.

He (angrily)—I actually believe you would marry the first fool that asks you. She (calmly)—Just ask me to marry you and prove the fallacy of your belief.

Mean.

First Fair One—How dreadful it is to have a skeleton in the family! Second Fair One—I know, dear. Have you ever tried exercise?

CHOLERA INFANTUM

Child Not Expected to Live From One Hour to Another, But Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Ruth, the little daughter of E. N. Dewey of Agnewville, Va., was seriously ill of cholera infantum last summer. "We gave her up and did not expect her to live from one hour to another," he says, "I happened to think of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and got a bottle of it from the store. In five hours I saw a change for the better. We kept on giving it and before she had taken the half of one small bottle she was well." This Remedy is for sale by Shoults & Co.

James Britt won the fight with Sullivan last week.

Croup

Is a violent inflammation of the mucous membrane of the wind-pipe, which sometimes extends to the larynx and bronchial tubes, and is one of the most dangerous diseases of children. It almost always comes on in the night. Give frequent small doses of Ballard's Horehound Syrup and apply Ballard's Snow Liniment externally to the throat. 25c, 50c and $1 00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

The Petaluma & Santa Rosa Electric Railway now extends from Petaluma to Forestville.

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he cannot be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars. For sale by Shoults & Co.

Fruit picking is now in full blast in this county.

Cheerfully Recommended for Rheumatism

O. G. Higbee, Danville, Ills writes, Dec. 2, 1001: "About two years ago I was laid up for four months with rheumatism. I tried Ballard's Snow Liniment; one bottle cured me. I can cheerfully recommend it to all suffering from like affliction. 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy—the Best in Existence

T. M. Wood, manager of the White County News, Beebe, Ark., is a representative southern business man who does not hesitate in expressing his good opinion of a well known remedy. He says, "It gives me pleasure to recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, having used it myself and in my family with the best results. In fact I believe it to be the best remedy of its kind in existence." Sold by Shoults & Co.

Sonoma's hotels are crowded with guests.

The Herbine treatment will cure all these troubles. 50c a bottle. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

The Gunboat Bennington will in all probability be abandoned.

Now is the time to buy Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is certain to be needed sooner or later and when that time comes you will need it badly—you will need it quickly. Buy it now. It may save life. For sale by Shoults & Co.

Baseball Players and Foot Racers

Louis J Kruger, ex-champion long distance foot racer of Germany and Holland, writes, Oct. 27, 1901: "During my training of eight weaks' foot races at Salt Lake City, in April last, I used Ballard's Snow Liniment to my greatest satisfaction.

Therefore, I highly recommend Snow Liniment to all who are troubled with sprains, bruises or rheumatism" 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Booth and Lincoln's Death Mask.

A touching reminiscence of the great actor Edwin Booth is told in connection with Lawrence Hutton's collection of death masks in "Talks In a Library," recorded by Isabel Moore:

Caunt's was one of the two masks in the collection which affected Booth most. The other, naturally enough, but in a very, very different way, was that of Lincoln. I shall never forget the first time he saw the Lincoln mask. He asked innocently enough whose it was, and when I told him, my heart for a moment stopping to beat, he rose from his seat, took it in his hands and looked at it for a long time without a word. What it meant to him we can imagine. The whole awful, awful business came back to him—the mad, dead brother; the martyred, murdered president. Still, without a word, he put it back in its place, and it seemed to me as he did so that he kissed it with his fingers. I have seen him in that room look at it silently over his pipe many and many a time. But he never touched it or spoke of it again, even to me. What he thought of it heaven only knows.

The Curve of Health.

The expression "the curve of health," which was first used by Oliver Wendell Holmes, himself a physician, indicates in modern mathematical fashion the fluctuating changes in bodily health, of which all are at times aware and which may be expressed by varying curves outlined on paper.

Many imagine that the normal state of health is best represented by a straight line. This is by no means the case. There is a rhythmic undulation in the flow of our vital force. The dynamo which furnishes the working powers of consciousness and action has its annual, monthly, daily waves, even its momentary ripples. We have our bad times and good times. Some by careful observation of the rise and fall of this curve, have so adjusted their holidays and times of rest and activity as to conserve their energies and avoid the snares of disease. It is from his knowledge of this curve that the family physician can act successfully.

Dutch Courage.

Every one when he speaks of Dutch courage means courage that is induced by the cup that cheers and also inebriates—pot valiancy, in short, the exact opposite of what has been called "two o'clock-in-the-morning" courage. Three different origins of the expression have been suggested. According to some, "Dutch" in this case is used simply as the adjective corresponding to the noon "Hollands," as applied to that kind of ardent spirits. Others assert positively that the phrase arose as a sneer at the Dutch troops who showed the white feather of Fontenoy. But perhaps the best explanation is that this uncomplimentary allusion to the Dutch refers to a practice common in former times in Holland of encouraging those who were condemned to execution to drink heavily before they were hanged.

A Dog Story.

Beerbohm Tree, the London actor, told a story of a dog named Argus which used to accompany him to the theater. The dog was of an emotional habit of mind and was greatly affected by sensational scenes. When Mr. Tree was playing in "Captain Swift" Argus used to take his place in the wing and follow his every word and look until the suicidal situation was reached. The moment Mr. Tree felt for his pistol Argus used to rush into the darkest corner he could find and, burying his head between his paws, listen for the thud of the actor's fall. After that the dog would crawl back to meet his master with a howl of joy at Mr. Tree's apparent return to life.

Green Hair.

There are men living today with green hair. This weird color is not a curious fad, but the result of working in a copper mine, where in order to become a marketable commodity the crude ore is roasted in furnaces. It is stated that, although no offensive odor emanates from this process, there is nevertheless some strange substance therein that produces a chemical change of the hair and beard, so that they become as green as grass. Strange to say, the texture of the hair suffers no injury, but remains as soft and glossy as ever.—Pearson's Weekly.

Brief Criticisms.

Of Gray's "Elegy" a contemporary reviewer wrote: "The excellence of this little piece amply compensates for its lack of quantity." That and nothing more. Of "In Memoriam" a contemporary estimate was that its "simple but touching verses" were evidently inspired by "the full heart of the widow of a military man."

Good Amendment.

Husband—This cake is very good, my dear, but it seems to me there ought to be a little more— Wife (in clear, icy, incisive tones)—That cake came by mail and was made by your mother. Husband—Yes, as I was saying, there ought to be a little more—of it.

The Situation.

First Passenger—Are they a happy family? Second Passenger—I'm afraid not. The old man is seasick, but his wife and the girls have mal de mer.—Harper's Bazar.

A Suggestion.

Doctor (to pressing creditor)—If you must bring your bill every day, at least you might come with your head tied up, so that people would think you were a patient!

Knowledge dwells in heads replete with thoughts of other men, wisdom in minds attentive to their own.—Cowper.
